

Carol Page – Senior Facilitator & Consultant

Location: Vancouver

Carol is an experienced coach, facilitator, trainer and consultant specializing in leadership development and organizational effectiveness. She has worked internationally with various public and private sector organizations, including education, transportation, pulp and paper, health care and health research. She has trained, coached and helped develop hundreds of supervisors, managers and leaders to address both business and people needs.

Carol holds a Bachelor of Education from the University of Alberta and a Master of Arts in Leadership and Supervision from the University of British Columbia. In addition, she holds certification in facilitation conflict management; large group intervention strategies, such as Open Space and Future Search Conferences; William Bridges Transitions for Individuals and organizations; Myers Briggs Type Inventory; and personal and business coaching.

Carol has also served as an instructor at numerous Canadian and American Universities and Colleges. Her work is recognized for its contribution to the areas of leadership, coaching, teamwork and change management. She was invited to develop, and delivered for a period of seven years, an Institute on Leadership and Change Management for Syracuse University, New York.

Areas of Facilitation Expertise

- Frontline supervision and leadership
- Team development
- Communication skills (delegation, feedback, etc)
- Performance management
- Conflict management
- Change management (and implementation) strategies
- Strategic and workforce planning
- Environmental scanning and needs analysis

Contact us today to meet Carol or any of our other senior facilitators.